She's my physical therapist, a nice girl from Iowa, and I don't do nice.

It's none of my business that her ex locked her out and took everything she owned. What am I supposed to do? After my unfortunate accident, social media is all over me, just waiting for my next mistake. I even offer her money and she refuses, suggesting I'm trying to buy sexual favors.

Now she's got this cockamamie idea that she could get back on her feet with a wedding and needs a fake groom. As a married man, that million-dollar advert deal could be a shoo-in so I offer my services. What I don't figure into the equation is those sweet baby-blues. The minute they focus on me, I'm toast.

Warning. This novella contains graphic language, steamy, sexual scenes, and respectfully deals with the delicate topic of a woman recovering from childhood abuse.
